A SCENE IN POLAND'S STRUGGLE AGAINST THE RUSSIAN AUTOCRACY.

(This drawing represents a parley outside the Pawiak Prison at Warsaw, between a crowd of forty thousand people and the officers of the Russian troops. This popular demonstration took place on the anniversary of the Czar's accession, when a number of political prisoners were released. The crowd occupied the street before the prison. Troops with guns arrived, and negotiations were opened between the officers and the leaders of the people. A row of candles was placed in the roadway, between the soldiers and the people. It was understood that if this line were crossed the troops would fire.)
